AT LEAST HE IS UP TO THE TRICKS OF THE PALE FACES,

And Be Buncoed Farmer Martin of Borden town Gut of $5,000 by Means of Gold Bricks-Now With His Pale Face Helper He is Offer a Happy Hunting Ground.

Tarnton, Feb. 28.—Three bunco operators have done Patrick Martin, a presperous Bor-dentown merchant, out of $5,000. The facts came to light yesterday. Three weeks ago a man of gentlemanly appearance and a fruent talker called at the home of Mr. Martin, seeking information of relatives, who, he pretend ed, were living in Bordentown.

The stranger succeeded in convincing Mr. Martin that he was a distant relative, and their names were similar. He claimed to have recently come from the gold regions of the West, and was just secretive enough to excite

Before leaving he had worked himself completely into the conflence of Martin, and re-ceived a pressing invitation to call soon again. He took advantage of the welcome, and on Friday last tested the hospitality of Mr. Marmunicative, but only under the most exacting pledges of secrecy. He told Martin his real business, and said he had just arrived from the West with an Indian who was the possessor of two bricks of gold worth $21,000, which he had accidentally disvered while hunting. The red man, he said, was at this time secreted in the woods about a mile from Tren-ton, and was anxious to dispose of the gold, even at a great sacrifice, rather than run the risk of offering it publicly, and possibly getting into litigation in some way. Mr. Mar-1. even at a great sacrifice, rather than run tin, although already quite well-to-do, still retains the thriftyl habits which brought him wealth, and is always open for any kind of an honest transaction, from a horse trade up. He concluded to accompany his newly made friend to Trenton and learn merce of the affair.

The Westerner suggested that an expert be secured to test the gold before Mr. Martin took any risks, and this advice was so fair and disinterested that even so ordinarily shrewd a man as Mr. Martin could no longer doubt the genuineness of the transaction. Mr. Martin agreed, and on arriving in Trenton the stranger offered to go to any jewelry store that Martin would suggest as a means of learning where they could find a man competent to test the gold. Morris Mays of Broad and State streets, suited Mr. Martin, and there the stranger entered, leaving Mr. Martin on the outside. He soon returned, bearing a note supposed to have been written by May, recommending to them a man then stopping at the Windsor Hotel, whom he knew to be reliable and trustworthy. A few mements later this man was found in his room at the hotel, apparently too busy in his work of weighing and measuring gold to be even interviewed. wealth, and is always open for any kind of an ments later this man was found in his room at the hotel, apparently too busy in his work of weighing and measuring gold to be even interviewed.

He, however, listened to their story, and was finally induced by a little persuasion and propor compensation to accompany them to the woods where the Indian was in hidding. Before leaving the city stranger No. 1 informed Mr. Martin that the Indian was willing to sell the bricks for $5,000 cash.

Martin having no money in the Trenton banks, asked Capt. Lawrence Farrell of Trenton to indorse a check for the amount. Capt. Farrell did not hesitate for a moment, and as soon as the $5,000 check could be cashed, a start was made to find the Indian.

They were not long in reaching their destination, a lonely spot not far from the State insane asplum. The Indian was seen in the distance hopping behind trees, in true dime novel style. It was with difficulty they could induce the savage to approach, which was carefully explained to Mr. Martin as being due to the fact that he was not civilized, and very much feared the tronchery of all palefaces.

The bricks of gold could be seen tightly clutched under his arm. At the sight of Martin's money he came forward, however, and with some ceremony submitted the bricks and assured Martin they were genuine, giving $5 for a small chip as proof of the value of the article. Mr. Martin thereupon handed over the $5,000, and, receiving his bricks, lost no time in getting to Tronton, and thence to Bordentown. His intention was to have his treasure exchanged for money at the Philadelphia Mint on Thursday next.

Mr. Martin was yesterday by agreement, expecting a visit from the Westerner, but instead received a special delivery letter from him postmarked Newark, stating that he and two of his colleagues were on their way to Canada expecting to enjoy his $5,000, and expressing the hope Mr. Martin was prostrated by the news, and was unable to leave his home in Bordentown yesterday. Of course, the Westerner, the gold tester, and the Indian were all unit

DUTCHESS DEMOCRATS WARNED.

The Tribune's Bruzen Boast that Its Party Will Win or Bankrupt the Democracy. POUGHREEPSIE, Feb. 28.-Saturday's New York Tribune contained a two column article concerning the town elections which are to take place in Dutchess county on Tuesday. Republicans will win in Dutchess county or they will bankrupt the Demogratic party." were the startling headlines of the article. The Democrats have often known in advance of the intentions of the Republicans here-abouts in the line of work which the Tribune's headlines so clearly Indicate, but the brazen ness of the announcement, together with the talk of the Republican manipulators in many parts of the country, caused an invertigation to be set on foot to ascertain many parts of the country, caused an investigation to be set on foot to ascertain whether Republicans were to pursue their old tactics on a more extended scale. In the town of America, it is learned that the Republicans have a corruption fund of $1,500. Where they got all this money, or how so much can be used in a town of its size, no one knows, unless bribery is to be carried on on a grander scale than ever before, except during the famous Whitehouse and Ketcham campaign.

The Republicans were unable to get a candidate against E. Wright Vail in Pleasant Valley until a letter of positive instructions cannot from Congressman Retcham, in Washington, to Edward Drake, storekeeper and Postmaster of Pleasant Valley. Mr. Drake thereupon accepted the Republican nomination, and the fight will be the most bitter on record.

The Republicans of that town have raised a fund of $2,000, and their heelers boast that they have a reserve fund in case the first gives out. At first there was thought to be more or less bluff in this talk, but now, as one fact after another crops out, it is coming to be a settled belief that the Republicans have raised a tremendous fund: All sorts of schemes are being devised by Kepublicans for marking ballots. Men experienced in such matters are racking their brains to find new ways for marking ballots for identification.

The Republicans seem to think that under sicans for marking ballots. Men experienced in such matters are racking their brains to find new ways for marking ballots for identification.

The Republicans seem to think that under the Barnard decision they have the right to mark ballots for identification in every conselvable way. They totally ignore or affect to disbelleve the decision of the Court of Appeals, especially in the Onondaga case, and pretend to regard Judge Barnard's decision as ranking above all others, which was to the effect that should 1600 men, by the most convincing elroumstantial and other evidence, be proved to have sold their votes and had their ballots marked for identification, yet each of the into court and made to testify against himself and to his own crime before his ballot could be thrown out. Believing such a construction of the law to be correct, it is no wonder that the Republicans expect to debauch Dutchess county as it never was debauched before.

In Fishkill, one of the large towns of the county, the Republicans profess to have a fund of $3,500, and a reserve fund the same as in Piessant Valley.

In Wappinger's a large manufacturing town, the managers of the great works of Garner & Co. are running one of their principal men for Supervisor.

It is not known as yet how much money is to be spent for him, probably not as much as for other Republican candidates. The firm has several thousand persons in its employ, and the bosses expect, by the aid of marked ballots, to tell how each of their employees, and how the husbands, brothers, and sons of their employees.

The Democrats have engaged legal counsel in New York and Albany, to whom evidence will be furnished relative to the marking of ballots in Dutchess county until it is entirely stopped. No attempt was made after the last election to prosecute those ongaged in such business. The Democrats propose to continue their line of warfare against the marking of ballots in Such as the marking of the least election to prosecute those found guilty of brilery and marking hallots, as

FATHER SHAHAN REMOVED.

He was to Charge of the Rich Norwich Par 1-h-Accesed of Immoralities. Nonwich, Feb. 28.—The Norwich parish is one of the largest and richest in any of the Roman Catholic diocese of New England. Its people sumber 0.500. The property consists of three convehes, a parochial school, a fine parish residence, and a great deal of other real estate. 11. Patrick's Church, always spoken of as the cathedral, cost something like $500,000 alone. For fourteen years, and until Feb. 1, the Rev. Father P. P. Shahan was in charge of the par-ish. On that day, however, he ceased to be paster any longer. Bishop McMahon of the Bartford diocese removed him from the parish and appointed the Rev. Father P. J. Kennedy of Birmingham his successor. On Jan 31, when lather shakan officiated for the last time, he never so much as dropped a hint that he was about to leave. It is doubtful if the majority of the parish people are aware of his removal now.

For a long time rumors affecting the peace of the parish house and the moral character of the priest in charge had been talked over among those well informed in local affairs. Stories of remarkable things heard and seen through the open doors and windows of the came here he found the walls of the church finished, but all work stopped. He pushed the work on until it was completed in the fall of 1870. Then Father Shahan built a fine parish residence near the church. Then he conceived the idea of building a parochial school. This was completed in 1882, at an estimated cost, it is said, of $40,000. The opening of the parochial school caused some excitement. Some of the parish people did, not take kindly to it. They desired to keep their children in the nublic schools. Father Shahan objected to this and won his point.

When Father Shahan came here from Stafford Strings he brought with him a woman named Hannah Anderson, whom he installed as his housekeeper. She has remained with him ever since, and is the cause of his present disgrace, so it is alleged. His parishioners, who appealed to Bishop McManon, coupled her name with his in their charges. The woman herself has made no charge against lather Shahan. O'Neil, and McKenna. That Father Shahan and they did not get along well together is an open secret. In fact, it was due to them to a great extent that the matter looking toward his removal was placed in the hands of the parishioners for action. Curate Neale took an active part and aided the committee.

PARISH HOUSE.

A committee of six volunteers went to Hartford. Later a committee of eighteen volunteers made a second call upon the Bishop with additional testimony. The charges came to the Bishop like a thunderbolt. Father Shahan had always had a high reputation as a priest. He had conducted the parish so successfully during the fourteen years he had been its pastor that his fame in church circles had extended all over New England. The Bishop promised the committee that he would give the matter his fullest attention. After his investigation Bishop McMahon summoned Father Shahan to Hartford and requested him either to resign or stand trial on the charge of immorality. Father Shahan refused to do either, it is said, and then the Bishop removed him from his parish.

Father Shahan is about 50 years old and a native of the mill village of Baltic, a few miles from this city. He was one of the first of the young Konan Catholics to be sent to Canada to study French. That was nearly a quarter of a century ago, when the French Canadians began emigrating to New England milling villaces. He was ordained near Montrealtwenty-two years ago. He held various charges in this diocese until appointed by Bishop McFarland to the Norwich barish. He came from the small parish of Stafford Springs, where he had already received some recognition for his executive ability. He succeeded Father Mullen as pastor of the Norwich diocese in March, 1878. Father Mullen had held the pastorate for ten years. It was he who conceived the idea of building the fine new church. He began the work in the early seventies, but was never able to finish it. The state of the money market prevented it. This so worked upon Father Mullen's mind that he became insane and had to be taken to Hartford for treatment. He died there on March 3, 1878. It was because Father Shahan had developed unusual executive ability that he was ap-pointed Father Mullen's successor. When he

One Travelled in the Gouverneur Hospital Ambulance-Oue Found in Chrystle Street. Three new cases of typhus fever developed yesterday, one in Bellevue Hospital, one in the quarantined house 42 East Twelfth street, and one in a hitherto unsuspected neighborhood, 222 Chrystic street. All the patients were taken to the Reception Hospital.

NEW TYPHUS CASES.

Henry Dowd, 19 years old, a relative of the proprietor of 40 Pike street, where there have been many cases of the fever and where twenty-five of the sufferers discharged as cured from North Brother Island are now quartered, was attacked by the fever on Saturday. His illness was reported to the po-

Saturday. His illness was reported to the police, and by some oversight when a call was sent out for an ambulance the ambulance from Gouverneur Hospital instead of the ambulance from Gouverneur Hospital instead of the ambulance from the Bureau of Contagious Diseases responded. The surgeon diagnosed Dowd's illness as pneumonia, and took him to Believue. The Gouverneur Hospital ambulance has been fumigated and supplied with new bedding and stretchers.

Max Morwitz, 24 years old, who was removed from 222 Chrystie street, contracted the disease, it is supposed, from his cousin, a passenger on the Massilla, who was living at 5 Essex street, and who was taken to North Brother Island on Monday last. Morwitz's father worked at 85 Monroe street, in the same tailor shop with Aaron Aaronson, who contracted the fover and was sent to the hospital on Thursday. Dr. Edson ordered that the Chrystie street house be added to the list of those under daily observation, and that all the hedding and clothing in Morwitz's rooms be destroyed. The house is a flye-story tenement, sheltering fifteen families.

The third patient is eight-year-old Rouben Abramowitz. He was taken from 42 East Twelith street. His father and three brothers were among the first of the Massilia's passengers to develop the disease.

The Bill to Tax the Baltimore and Ohio. Annapolis, Feb. 28.-It looks now as though the bills to tax the Baltimore and Ohio and Northern Central Railroads will be passed by the Legislature. Up to the present time the Baltimore and Ohia has made no effort to prevent legislation.

John K. Cowen, the counsel for the company, expresses the opinion that the act, if passed, will be declared invalid by the courts, inasmuch as it conflicts with the charter rights of the company, which exempts it from taxation. Based on the Dartmouth College decision, this would be an impairment of a contract. The friends of the bil claim that it has nothing to do with the original act, and that if the company shows fight the case will be carried to the United States Supreme Court for adjudication. It is not believed that the company will risk letting it go so far, but that a compromise will be effected.

During the last year she has visited Greenwood Cemetery three times with members of her family, and during the warm season she is often seen promenading through the gardens around the old homesteal and enjoying the fresh air.

To-day the Cathòlic Club will be housed in its new quarters at 120 West Fifty-ninth street, and the 700 members will have an opfuture club home furnished in all its completeness. The building is one of which they nay well be proud, for it is certain to take high rank among New York's luxurious club houses. It stands on a plot 75 feet front and 110 feet deep, commanding a picturesque view of Cen-tral Park. The front of the building is treated in the style of the early Italian renaissance the basement and first story being of rustic stone, and the four stories above of Roman brick and terra cotta. ments. Directly back of the main hall is a large billiard room finished in hard wood. This is 33 by 57 feet, and the lovers of the game to which it is devoted declare that it is the finest room of its kind in New York club-dom. On the right of the hall two doors screened with portières of Vatican tapestry lead to the reading and smoking room. The walls of this room are in Japaneso leather, and all the woodwork is of antique oak as well as the bookenses and reading tables. A broad staircase, covered with a deep red Axminster carpet, in contrast with the walls of warm buff, leads from the hall to the floor above. Draperies of velours break the lines of the staircase.

In the ball on the second floor is a full length portrait of Pope Pius IX., which was presented to the club by William Devlin. It is on the second floor that the finest apartments of the club are situated. Throughout the house the style of the Italian remaissance prevails, except in the drawing-room and the ballroom on this floor. The ballroom is in the style of Louis XVI. The color scheme is ivory and gold, and the windows are draped with a silken damask and curtains of creamy lace in the style of Marie Antoinette. Low divangupholstered in old gold, are placed around the room. A great circle of incandescent electriciamps in the ceiling lights up the room with the brilliancy of day.

Adjoining the ballroom is a dainty ladse parlor, finished in golden brown and soft ellow. The drawing room, on the same floo, is in Louis XV, style, and is finished in reflect colors than the ballroom. The panelled falls are hung with rose satin damask. The window draperies of similar stuff, lambriquins embroidered in gold, and a soft capet of royal Axminster add to the picturesgeness of the room.
